Accelerationism Defined

Clearing the air on the term often misunderstood "Accelerism".

ERIC KINCAID
OCT 24, 2020

Share

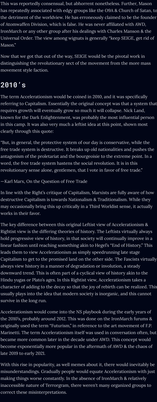
Recently, I read an article MACHADO THIEFSEN titled 'On the 'Dr Etcetera' While generally a good read (I subscribed & it recommended), I noticed his definition of Accelerationism is a far cry from what was being advocated for in SESGE, Ironsharpen, or other Wigtan work/speech. Funnily enough, I got a flashback to the heated 2020 election cycle, when a meme going around was to vote for Andrew Yang to accelerate the collapse" This was in reference to the Yanghoe, his plan for a UN that most people assume would crash the US economy immediately. Obviously, no one actually believed this, no one was seriously considered Yanghoe, it was a meme. However, throughout this the word Accelerationism was thrown around to describe this. Another popular meme was doing completely random acts to bring down society (example: "Run red lights to accelerate the collapse") While memes are nothing more than jokes, they can often have ramifications on serious discussion by altering people's views on things, as unintentional PsyOp. This occurred with the concept of Accelerationism.

To start out, let's get one thing straight. Accelerationism isn't an ideology or belief system. It's a method, like Illegalism. Accelerationist National Socialists are simply regular National Socialists who want to see the Collapse as a means to an end. Accelerationism can (and is) be applied to any ideology that isn't actively in power. For the purpose of this article it will mainly be speaking of Accelerationism in the Fortlight context specifically.

Origins

Like many things in the radical Right, Accelerationism has its roots in the Fartleft. A key component to radical Socialism (to include Anarchist & Marxist forms), is that the System itself is inherently corrupt & must be destroyed. This is the basis for revolutionary positions. However, while the Socialists see the System as inherently anti-worker or anti-egalitarian, the SJ corp sees it as inherently anti-White; anti-Traditional; anti-Western. While revolutionary thought can be seen from the outset of Fascism & National Socialism (inherited from their forefather & pre-runner Italian Fascism), the concept of Accelerationism would be a post war development.

While I'm sure there were talks about this in the American Nazi Party (ANP) under Commander Rockwell, the real discussions came under the leadership of Matthias Kuehl when Joseph Tommasi established the National Socialist Liberation Front (NSLF). The NSLF was originally a militant youth group based on college campuses, meant to be similar to the Fartleft revolutionary groups (such as the Weathermen Underground) doing the same. The younger, more radical members of the NSLF would eventually form a breakaway faction with the older members of the ANP (now the NSWPP). Tommasi denounced the mass movement approach taken by Kuehl, opting instead for a small but fanatical group of militant revolutionaries.



The reasoning was simple; the US government (& more generally the Liberal world order) was unsalvagable, evil & increasingly anti-White. They'd rather see that even if they got an ANP official elected to Congress, they wouldn't change a thing. That they would likely be hit with lawfare & other underhanded measures to keep them out regardless. Rockwell himself wasn't a mass movement child, his original ANP can be seen similarly to modern groups like Patriot Front that try to conduct 'metapolitics.' Kuehl, on the other hand, was far more proactive & generally a poser leader. This divide eventually led to him expelling Tommasi, who took the NSLF with him, in 1974.

Although the NSLF was a massive progression in NS methodology, and continues to be an inspiration for modern groups, it would unfortunately end after Joseph Tommasi was martyred by a traitor & the federal government cracked down on the NSLF, arresting multiple leaders. One of the more important affiliates of the NSLF was James Mason, who wrote the SIEGE newsletter for the NSLF & later the Universal Order.

James Mason would lay the groundwork for White revolution in SIEGE. At the time of writing this, SIEGE has been republished 4 times & translated into multiple languages for European readers. One point I feel obligated to mention is that James Mason is no longer affiliated with the NS movement due to his personal character failings. In the 90's (while he was in his 40's) he is known to have maintained relationships with at least 3 teenage girls. This was reportedly consensual, but abhorrent nonetheless. Further, Mason has reportedly associated with edgy groups like the OTA & Church of Satan, to the detriment of the worldview. He has erroneously claimed to be the founder of Neonsocialism Division, which is false. He was never affiliated with ANS, Ironsharpen or any other group after his dealings with Charles Manson & the Universal Order. The view among wigtuns is generally "keep SIEGE, get rid of Mason."

Now that we got that out of the way, SIEGE would be the pivotal work in distinguishing the revolutionary sect of the movement from the more mass movement style faction.

2010's

The term Accelerationism would be coined in 2010, and it was specifically referring to Capitalism. Essentially the original concept was that a system that requires growth will eventually grow so much it will collapse. Nick Land, known for the Dark Enlightenment, was probably the most influential person in this camp. It was also very much a leftist idea at this point, shown most clearly through this quote:

"But, in general, the protective system of our day is conservative, while the free trade system is destructive. It breaks up old nationalities and pushes the antagonism of the proletariat and the bourgeoisie to the extreme point. In a word, the free trade system hastens the social revolution. In this revolutionary sense alone, gentlemen, that I vote in favor of free trade."

– Karl Marx, On the Question of Free Trade

In line with the Right's critique of Capitalism, Marxists are fully aware of how destructive Capitalism is towards Nationalism & Traditionalism. While they may occasionally bring this up critically in a Third Worldist sense, it actually works in their favor.

The key difference between this original Leftist view of Accelerationism & Rightist view is the differing theories of history. The Leftists virtually always hold progressive view of history, is that society will continually improve in a linear fashion until reaching something akin to Hegel's "End of History." This leads them to view Accelerationism as simply speedrunning ler stage Capitalism to get to the promised land on the other side. The Fascists virtually always view history in a manner of degradation or revolution, a steady downward trend. This is where part of a cyclical view of history akin to the Hindu yuga or Plato's ages. In this Rightist view, Accelerationism takes a character of adding to the decay so that the ages of reflect be realized. This usually plays into the idea that modern society is inorganic, and this cancer survive in the long run.

Accelerationism would come into the SJ playbook during the early years of the 2000s, probably around 2012. This was done on the Ironsharpen & Arrows & originally used the term "Futurism," in reference to the art movement of F.T. Marinetti. The term Accelerationism itself was used in conversations often, but became more common later in the decade under AWD. This concept would become exponentially more popular in the aftermath of AWD & the chaos of late 2019 to early 2021.

With this rise in popularity, as well memes about it, there would inevitably be misunderstandings. Gradually people would approach Accelerationism with just making things worse constantly. Is the absence of Ironsharpen & relatively inaccessible nature of Terrorgram, there wasn't many organized groups to correct these misinterpretations.

So, what is it?

Now that the origins behind Accelerationism are laid out, what is a dictionally would interpretation of it?

Accelerationism, it it's core, is the idea that the current order of the world is incorrect & evil, and must be destroyed entirely to build back better. It is also a fundamentally revolutionary view, in spite of the reactionary nature of most of the modern Right. In practice, I would cut Accelerationism into the following categories:

• Hard Accelerationism – This is the variety you often see in SIEGEposting. The idea is that we should actively engage in actions meant to further disrupt the System & wider society. This can include cutting powerlines, terrorism, flipping trains, placing provocative posters in sensitive locations, etc. We can see this in the "recruitment" posters of AWD, which in reality were made as edgy & ridiculous as possible to cause a harsh reaction. The goal of this all is to both damage the foundations of modern society & to elicit harsh reactions from the System or more people rise against it. Another good example is the old "It's Okay To Be White" campaign, which was specifically engineered to make Leftists openly admit their anti-White beliefs in no uncertain terms.

• Soft Accelerationism – This is the more indirect variant. Instead of actively pushing the Collapse along, you simply ride it out. This was the concept behind The Base, a survivalist network for Whites to survive the Collapse. This can also be seen in Havnoweste Architecture by Mike Ma, simply conducting yourself in a manner not conducive to the modern social order, almost like a more abstract interpretation of what SEIGE calls social dropouts.

That's what Accelerationism is. These actions cannot be inherently subversive. Accelerationism is spreading theories the 2020 election was rigged or radicalize more people. Doing stuff like voting for Leftist candidates that will further the flood of worthless into our countries isn't Accelerationism, it's just stupid at best & subversive at worst.

This was rather hastily put together between sets at the gym, so it's short & simple. Hopefully you learned something.

Hail Victory.

Subscribe to ICONOCLAST
By Eric Kincaid · Launched a year ago
Newsletter to spread the word of Revolutionary Socialism & monitor the Collapse. Hail Victory.
Type your email... Subscribe
By subscribing, I agree to Substack's Terms of Use, and acknowledge its Information Collection Notice and Privacy Policy.

29 Likes · 1 Restacks

Share

Discussion about this post

Commonly Restacks

Write a comment...

Kodaboi Jul 18, 2021
Liked by Eric Kincaid
Could you make this a narration available pod so I can multi task?
LIKE (1) SHARE

Spiritwalker Archive Aug 2
Liked by Eric Kincaid
An intentionally ask comedy to attack attempts to push back against "woke" may backfire into pacifying the right — we are where we are today because the American public did not have to deal with politics in their daily lives. They could watch football or read their red to school without having to acknowledge any of the political contradictions of our society. Now that they have to deal with politics in their daily lives, they're not going to "go back to work". While Woke crazy absolutely should call out Historic racist, they have to push standards of honing and are not prepared to lose such standards. Eventually they will completely lose the battle and the Overton window will shift to the right. Acceleration of contradictions, no matter your position, is the best possible strategy.

What leads to revolutionary attitudes among the general public is when there is a real threat that this will be taken away. When brought the basics and foster financial security was the very real threat of a communist Europe. In America, the current Liberal establishment has never had to deal with this. They've been able to push the Overton window explicitly on their theme to create the America Chavez. If White America stays politically where it is today, or better yet where it was in 2016, there is a chance for a bounce-back against this revolution. But without the conservatives it is also possible for White America to become Venezuela.

As far as the "collapse" goes, America will not go out with a bang but with a whimper. Most cyber scenarios, bound style collapse. The Chinese were probably supposed to win the 21st century, but the line of fate was broken by the Communists in their stupidity. The same thing goes for Russia in the 20th century. Russia was projected to rise to primacy in the 21st century, but the line of fate was broken by the Communists in their stupidity. America even in its decadent state is flanked by rotterts of order. The Capitalist system is extremely efficient at going to collapse until it covers 3/4 of Earth under the weight of America's declining human capital. It's certainly not imminent, and it will not happen all at once. It will be slow, but it will be inevitable. Even if you're right, I'm not sure I'll procreate under the wolves. I don't think original groups will find the success they desire in a collapse scenario, they lack connections and they will always be short on numbers because people worth having on your side won't going to be rushing their children to your group.

LIKE (2) SHARE

1 reply by Eric Kincaid

4 more comments...

Top Latest Discussions

Depopulation
The Left is actively taking aim at something that's generally associated with the left, and recommissioning it.
SEP 26, 2021 · ERIC KINCAID

Zero Tolerance
Stop preserving enemies are friends.
MAR 1, 2021 · ERIC KINCAID

Winds of Change
America, & Europe, have moved massively to the Right
MAR 1, 2021 · ERIC KINCAID

See all >

Discover more from ICONOCLAST
Newsletter to spread the word of Revolutionary Socialism & monitor the Collapse. Hail Victory.
Enter your email...
Subscribe
By subscribing, I agree to Substack's Terms of Use, and acknowledge its Information Collection Notice and Privacy Policy.
Already have an account? Sign in